THREE-TIMES-A-WEEK

Rockland, Maine, Sept. 30, 1922.
Personally appeared Frank S. Lydie, who on oath declares that he is pressman in the office of the Rockland Publishing Co., and that of this issue of The Courier-Gazette of Sept. 28, 1922, there was printed a total of 1,000 copies. Before me, FRANK B. MILLER, Notary Public.

THE BEAUTY OF HOLINESS:—Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name; bring an offering, and come before him; worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness.—1 Chronicles 16:29.

A correspondent writing from Washington says:

"There is something fundamentally wrong with a man who can get vehement in denouncing what is claimed to be an error of the Attorney General but has not one word of denunciation for the destruction of property, the interference with traffic, the personal assaults and the murders which have characterized the coal and rail strikes. A man who can see only the possible mistakes of government officials and blinds his eyes to unquestionable and notorious crimes committed by the enemies of law and order, is at heart an anarchist, whatever may be his pretensions in his public utterances. His sympathies are with the idler, not with the worker. His concern is for the welfare of the rioter, not for the welfare of the law-abiding citizen. He glories in the success of crime and bewails the supremacy of law. He exalts tyranny by intimidation and destroys respect for courts. In his zeal for protection of the rights of some men to quit, he has no thought for the right of other men to work. He justifies himself by quoting constitutional guarantees of free speech, but he is in league with men who defy the constitutional guarantee of freedom to live. He is against this government or any other government that proposes to protect the rights of all from the brute force of a few. He is an undesirable citizen in any country at any time."

Capt. Butler's incident of the Civil War is a highly interesting and well told piece of narrative that The Courier-Gazette is very glad he gives it the opportunity of preserving.

OCTOBER OFFERINGS

If You Believe Almanac Predictions Read This—Two Holidays.

Weather for October according to the Old Farmer's Almanac is to be warmer for the first three or four days. From the 5th to the 12th is marked "unsettled, with rain." From the 13th to the 18th it says "seasonable weather," which should mean crisp nights and heat at midday. From the 24th to the 27th is to be "clear and colder," then "unsettled and followed by rain."

October has two festival days, observed in Maine: Columbus day when schools celebrate an anniversary of rest and Halloween, the night of the pumpkin. Celebrated men born in October include Jonathan Edwards, Oct. 5, 1703; Noah Webster, Oct. 16, 1758 and Theodore Roosevelt, Oct. 27, 1858.

The days have shortened from June 22 when they were 15 hours and 13 minutes long, three hours and 21 minutes to 11 hours and 48 minutes. The month's decrease will be one hour and 23 minutes.

Harvest moon is due the 5th.

ACRES OF RECORDS

Are Being Ransacked That Soldiers May Receive Deserve Credits.

The War Department has determined that the individual soldier in the World War shall receive credit for his battle service. To this end it has instituted a battle participation board that is reviewing the records of every "outfit" that went to France to determine finally what action against the Germans they took part in.

Stowed away in a corner of the enormous building that houses the records of the American Expeditionary Forces in Washington the board is plugging away at its task. A lot depends upon it, its members say for if "Private O'Mulligan, 68845," was in the St. Mihiel offensive and the records have him wrong, who can say to what indignities O'Mulligan's descendants a hundred years from now may have to suffer from this inaccuracy.

Acres and acres of records, piled three stories high in an eight-winged building, is the battle-terrain of the board. Records of every individual that reached France, records of every outfit that ever got off a transport, are there.

The system thus is this: When a soldier applies for a medal, the board gets to work and determines what action the Umptieth participated in. Private Giannocelli's personal record is then searched by another department to see if he was the Umptieth at the time it was engaged. If so, he is awarded the appropriate clasp for his medal for the actions which the board has decided the Umptieth took part in. The board's decision becomes a history.

The policy of the board is liberal, its members say. Each one of them, a total of four, saw days and days of active front line service and they are disposed to give every soldier full credit for participating in an action even if he only heard a gun fired.

MRS. BREEN'S CASE

First Maine Woman To Be Rerieved Finally Discharged By the Court.

Lillian Breen was discharged from the custody of the law Wednesday, after being sentenced to 90 days in jail and fined $300 some considerable time ago and subsequently granted reprieve after reprieve, which brought her case before Gov. Baxter and Executive Council as well as three Supreme Court judges here. The case was interesting at its early stages in that it was the only reprieve to be granted in this State; and is doubly so now, in that this lone reprieve has been proven to be an illegal one.

Mrs. Breen was originally convicted of making a single sale of intoxicating liquor. The facts in the case are: April 7, 1922, she was committed on a mittimus issued by the Supreme Court. April 20, she was granted a reprieve of 45 days and released from jail that night. June 6, she was granted a second reprieve of 60 days by the Governor and Council, and Aug. 3 was granted a third reprieve of 30 days.

Upon word from authorities that this last one had expired Sept. 23, she was taken into custody by Deputy Sheriff Rokes.

Her attorney, Frank A. Tirrell, Jr., then petitioned to Associate Justice Albert M. Spear, sitting in Belfast, for a writ of habeas corpus. Tuesday the writ was issued by Judge Spear, directing the sheriff to have Mrs. Breen in Belfast at 9 a. m. the following morning, at which time she was permanently released. Her discharge was based upon arguments set forth by her attorney to the effect that a reprieve could not be granted when a sentence had run out; also that a reprieve was illegal except in the event of capital cases, anyhow. County Attorney Dwinall appeared in Belfast for the State.

Boys' and Girls' Clubs from Union, Warren, Washington, Camden and Cribhaven are holding their annual contest in the Methodist vestry today, under the direction of Harold Nash of Camden, the county project leader. State leader L. P. Shibles and County Agent R. C. Wentworth are also present. The program began at 9:30 this morning and will continue well into the afternoon, with a dinner served by the Methodist women as the only interruption. The exhibits will be in the vestry all day, and the general public is invited to drop in and see what the smart boys and girls have been doing this summer.

James Bridges, a former bell boy at the Thorndike Hotel who is now serving as mess boy on the lighthouse tender Hibiscus, was in the city Thursday, and is planning to spend his vacation here next week. The tender landed 250 cases of kerosene and 50 barrels of crude oil at Matineus Rock Thursday, and has lately supplied the Monhegan station with crude oil. The Hibiscus carries a crew of 32.

40 Years' Success

For Over Forty Years we have been doing business with the good people of Rockland and vicinity and it is with pardonable pride that we look back upon our achievements in the commercial world during that period. The principal reason for our success has been—and we trust will be—the great number of people who constitute our regular customers—some of them representing families who have traded with us for four decades; others, no less valued, who have more recently become acquainted with the character of the goods we carry and the liberal business policy that we have always maintained.

PEARL MANK HELD

South Hope Man Appeals From Jail Sentence and Fine.

In the arraignment in Municipal Court yesterday morning of Pearl Mank of South Hope, who was charged by the State with possessing a worm for the production of distilled liquor, a plea of "not guilty" was made by the respondent, and examination was waived. Mank was found guilty by Judge Miller, and sentenced to two months in the County jail with a fine of $1,000, from which sentence he appealed and furnished bonds in the sum of $500 for his appearance in the January term of court.

The search and seizure complaint which had been entered against his brother, Roy Mank, was dismissed in view of willingness on the part of Pearl Mank to assume all responsibility.

The complaint against Jessie Davis, who was charged with the illegal possession of intoxicating liquors, was also dismissed, for lack of evidence that she had had anything to do with their manufacture. Mank stated that he also wished to exonerate Mrs. Davis of all blame with this respect. Mrs. Davis, whose home is in Boston, has been a visitor at Mank's residence for several weeks.

HUNTERS TAKE NOTICE

Licenses Must Be Carried Constantly. Non-residents No Exception.

With the opening of the general hunting season Oct. 1, every hunter whether resident or non-resident should bear in mind that he must secure a hunting license from the city clerk. These licenses may be obtained at the office of the city clerk and the certificate of registration which is issued in the hunter's name should be carried constantly on his person while he is engaged in hunting. Fish and Game wardens and others endowed with such authority may ask to see your license any time while you are engaged in hunting and failure to produce such certificate or satisfactory evidence of the issuance of the same constitutes a violation of the law and is punishable by a fine.

During the hunting season city, town and plantation clerks are endowed with the authority of Fish and Game Wardens by the Commissioner of Inland Fisheries and Game and are authorized to check up hunters who have not applied for registration and in such cases to enforce the law. Non-resident hunters who secure bird hunting licenses from city, town or plantation clerks may exchange them later in the season for deer hunting licenses by paying the difference in the fees for both licenses. New deputy wardens are at work in this locality constantly and will probably ask to see your certificate of registration whenever they see you with a gun. If you have a license carry it with you—if not see your city or town clerk today. Resident licenses cost only twenty-five cents and may save you considerable annoyance.

APPRECIATES ARBORETUM

Attorney General Shaw Very Enthusiastic After a Visit There

Knox Arboretum, Sept. 25.

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—Attorney General Randolph W. Shaw and his assistant, Hon. William H. Fisher, with their wives, were visitors to the Arboretum yesterday, driving through in their car from Houlton. They expressed themselves as delighted with the place, and both Mr. Shaw and Mr. Fisher expressed strong opinions that the Knox Academy, as a State institution, doing educational and experimental work of great value to the State, should receive from the coming Legislature a liberal State appropriation for the museum building and for development of the Knox Arboretum. "You don't need to go to the law makers and beg for a gift, they should see at once the great value to the whole State of the scientific work that the Academy is doing and should make an appropriation as a paying investment."

Asked if he could be counted on to help secure the same, Mr. Shaw replied with enthusiasm: "You may count me from now on as a booster for the Knox Arboretum and the Knox Academy."

J. W. Hupper of St. George and friends were also visitors. Mr. Hupper said the County alone should support such a wonderful place as the arboretum. It was his first visit and he was glad he came, and will visit the spot oftener hereafter.

Speaking of good automobile police hands, "Doc" Ellingswood will probably play his since it is 66999—and the chances are he will suggest that deuces wild be called either.

Miss Alice Dugan, who served on the office staff of the Knox Hospital drive, is employed as stenographer in the I. L. Snow Co.'s office.

The regular meeting of Clarendon Commandery will be held Monday evening, with work on the Orders of Red Cross and Malta.

The regular meeting of Rockland Lodge, F. and A. M., will be held Tuesday evening, with work on the Entered Apprentice degree.

Clifford Smith is having a fortnight's vacation from the Burpee Furniture Co. store.

Local football fans will probably journey Camdenward this afternoon to see the game between Camden High School and Lawrence High School of Fairfield. As the latter team plays here Armistice Day the members of Rockland High ought to be able to get a line on it, as well as at Camden High, which plays in Rockland one week from today.

Ralph Philbrook and Lady Cross of this city and Adelbert Benner of Thomaston leave today for the Allegheny region on a fortnight's hunting trip.

Jean McKenzie, assistant matron of Knox Hospital, is having a fortnight's vacation.

E. Merrill Reed, formerly of Rockland High and Hebron Academy, is now in Orono, where he is taking a chemical engineering course at the University of Maine.

Commencing next Monday, the steamer for Vinahaven will leave Rockland at 2 p. m. The steamer for North Haven, Stonington, Isle au Haut and Swan's Island will leave at 1.30 p. m.

Having closed out his sail-loft business to William P. Tibbets, Fred Richardson returns to Boston the first of the week. Shortly thereafter he expects to locate in Savannah, Ga.

Rev. A. E. Scott, who has been acting as assistant curate at St. Luke's Cathedral in Portland the past month will resume services in his own church tomorrow. There will be no early service, but at 10.30 a. m. there will be Holy Communion and sermon. Services will also be resumed Sunday at St. Mark's House, 119 South Main street and at the Episcopal church in Thomaston.

Several new Buicks are being driven in this section, among the owners being Harold E. Jackson of Rockland, Capt. James Creighton of Thomaston and Mrs. A. H. Hurd of Ash Point.

Rockland will be represented at the 48th annual convention of the Maine Bankers' Association in New York next week by A. S. Littlefield, president of the Rockland National Bank; Homer E. Robinson, cashier of the Rockland National Bank; H. N. McDougall, vice president of the Security Trust Co., and J. N. Southard, assistant cashier of the North National Bank. Mr. Southard, who will be registered at the McAlpin, during his stay in New York, will leave for that city on tonight's boat. The others, accompanied by their wives, will motor to Portland tomorrow, taking the State of Maine Express from that city. The McDougalls have engaged rooms at the Belmont, the Robinsons will be quartered at the Pennsylvania Hotel. Mr. Littlefield, who is also president of the Maine Bankers' Association, has wired for rooms at the Pennsylvania. This year's convention will be the largest and the most important meeting of bankers ever held in the United States. It is doubtful whether the bankers of America ever met at a time when the financial problems of the world were as serious and complicated as they are today. When the convention is called to order Oct. 2 it will be with a real appreciation of the grave responsibilities which rest upon the bankers of our country.

The Boston low-rate excursions provided by the Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc. will begin next Tuesday. It has been 10 years since these fall excursion rates were offered by the steamboat company and the patrons will be very grateful to Supt. Sherman for his agency in having the rates restored.

The Naval Trial Board has made reservations for rooms at the Thornlike Hotel next week, when the trials of the destroyer Putnam will be held. The board will arrive Tuesday.

Interclass football in Rockland High School begins on the Broadway ground today with the Sophomores and Freshmen as contenders in the initial struggle.

The Salvation Army was in attendance at Union Fair. The organization is not lacking friends and supporters in that part of the county.

The Black Investments, Inc., has been organized in this city for the purpose of dealing in stocks, bonds and other securities in Rockland. The following are the officers: Alfred S. Black, president and treasurer; C. L. Fields, secretary; directors, E. B. MacAllister and the above-named officers.

A highly interested group "listened in" on radio entertainments through Louis W. Fickett's new apparatus at the Maine Music store last night. Schenectady station was heard clear as a bell, the story of "Hiawatha" was told with remarkably clear enunciation. The baseball fans were much interested to know that the Red Sox were still holding the Yankees in check, while St. Louis was beating Chicago. A side of the knob and the audience heard several selections by the Marine Band in Washington. Cincinnati was heard very clearly, but the crowning event of the evening was the balance of a program broadcasted from Louisville, Ky.

L. A. Grant and sons Albert and Earl, Charles Chase and Fred Herrick leave tomorrow for Chesapeake where they will hunt big game for two weeks.

A church bowling league, with representative teams from the Congregational, Baptist, Universalist and Methodist churches, was formed at a meeting Thursday night at which time managers were chosen. They were: Clarence E. Barnard, Congregationalist; Frank H. Ingraham, Baptist; Frank A. Tirrell, Jr., Universalist; and David Beach, Methodist. It was decided to start a winter series Oct. 6, rolling two games a week on Mondays and Thursdays. At the end of the season, suitable trophies will be awarded for individual high season total, high three-string total and high single string.

The Veteran Firemen's Association voted last night to take the handout Albert R. Havener to the Topsham Muster, Oct. 10. The matter of organizing a Maine League of Veteran Firemen's Association was discussed and Secretary Charles M. Lawry was instructed to get in communication with the other Associations.

With the Union Fair off the docket everybody's thoughts now turn to the Lincoln County Fair at Damariscotta, which will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Some big attractions have been booked. The $500 free-for-all will draw a big field of winners. The athletic sports will appeal to the young and to the young old people, and on the midway there will be something doing every minute of the day. Taylor's trained ponies and dogs will furnish entertainment, and an interesting and unique feature of this year will be a chance to see some of the Eskimo dogs used by MacMillan-Bowdoin party on their last expedition.

BIG CARGO OF KILNWOOD

Barge Brings 450 Cords From New Brunswick For Edward Bryant Co.—A Thriving Concern.

In the olden days when wood was used exclusively in the manufacture of lime and wood-coasters piled their trade between Provincial ports and Rockland, it was no uncommon thing to see the harbor full of such craft, and the writer recalls that 26 such arrivals were recorded in a single day at the Custom House.

Eventually soft wood was succeeded by soft coal and the big fleet of coasters practically disappeared—much to the regret of traders along the street, who had sold the British vessels many a large bill of goods.

One lime concern which continues to use wood in the industry is the Edward Bryant Co., which operates in Rockland and Rockport, and there is now being discharged from that firm at the Perry wharf in this city what is said to be the largest cargo of kilnwood ever received at this port—450 cords.

It was brought from St. Martin's, N. B. in a barge, whose prolific hold seems to be carrying an entire forest. Frequenters of the waterfront who have seen this big cargo smile when they compare it with the diminutive loads which the little old lime coasters used to bring.

The Edward Bryant Co. is operating two kilns in Rockland and three in Rockport. They are being run to capacity, and produced last week 5460 barrels. The product finds a speedy market in Boston and New York, and much of it is sold here in Maine.

The Rockport quarry is under the foremanship of Frank Marshall, while the Achorn quarry in Rockland is run by Levi Keizer. All told the company has on its payroll about 150 men, and is distributing in weekly wages about $2400.

The general manager of the industry is B. C. Perry, who has no peer in the lime regions when it comes to a knowledge of the industry.

The Edward Bryant Co. is delighted with the success of the Achorn quarry which it opened not long ago. Old quarrymen pronounce it "mighty handsome rock" and the lime which comes from the kilns is second to none.

COAL DISTRIBUTION

What This Section May Expect in the Way of Anthracite.

A statement showing the expected distribution of anthracite coal to all the communities in this State during the coming winter has been compiled by Andrew P. Lane, fuel administrator, and has been sent to all coal dealers. These figures which do not include any distribution by the Hudson Coal Co. promise that approximately two-thirds of the year's supply will be received.

The first figures show by comparison all shipments from April 1, 1921, to March 31, 1922, while the second gives the expected shipments from Sept. 1, to March 31, 1923, as follows:

	Received	Expected
Camden	5,535	3,185
Friendship	166	99
Rockland	10,184	6,110
Rockport	733	495
South Union	39	23
Thomaston	3,567	2,104

REPUBLICANS SAFE

Clerks' returns from Knox county, compiled at the Secretary of State's office this week resulted, it is reported, in a gain of 16 for Mrs. Mary Perry Rich, county commissioner; and a gain of about 100 for Sheriff Thurston. There will be no recount.

OUR GRANGE CORNER

Limerock Valley Pomona meets with Westaway Grange, South Thomaston, Oct. 7, at 2 p. m. and will present the following program:

Roll call of officers; answered by quotations; address of welcome, Worthy Master Ralph Rowell; response, Mrs. Phyllis Tolman Morse; reading, Mrs. Bertha Holbrook; piano duet, the Misses Helen and Susie Sleeper; original poem, Mrs. Jean Morgan; piano solo, Mrs. Charles Watts; vocal solo, Mrs. Carleen Nutt; question for general discussion: Do farmers have more to fear from labor leaders than from leaders of national finance and big business? solo, Miss Lillian Putnam; current events, Ellis Sprague; vocal solo, Miss Ragnhild Heistad; violin solo, Mrs. Hooper; singing by the Grange; reading, Mrs. E. Sprague; solo, Mrs. Lillian Combs; reading, Frank Richardson.

The Waldo County General Hospital raised very nearly $12,000 on its recent drive, a much more satisfactory showing than had been indicated by the somewhat gloomy reports sent out early in the drive by the Belfast correspondents.

Miss Gertrude Aylward is employed as clerk in Orgel E. Davies' jewelry store.

This Week

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

A review from the columns of this paper of some of the events which interested Rockland and vicinity for three weeks ending Sept. 28, 1897.

The Rockland High School football team had organized for the season. The players were Day, Veazie, Colcord, Hayden, Thomas, Snow, Merchant, Hall, Dunbar, Rhodes and Knowlton.

William M. Spear resigned his position as captain of the Bowdoin College football team, but continued in his old position at center.

The W. H. Glover Co. contracted to build a 10-room cottage for H. L. Harding of Boston, at North Haven.

The entering class at Colby College included from Knox County W. J. Abbott of Rockland, Sherman W. Perry of Camden, Fred W. Newcomb of Thomaston and Erastus L. Wall of Rockport.

Dan Sobel beat H. Morrier in a great bicycle race for the championship of the "Clear Maker" Union.

S. Osgood Andrews became professor of English and Latin in the Detroit School for Boys.

There was great excitement on Limerock street when Hugh McDonald doing a 500-yard dash, in a striped sweater was mistaken for an escaped convict.

Returning from a dance at Limerock hall Frank ("Gov.") Day fell into the Adams quarry, where he lay in great pain until 4 o'clock, when his groans were heard by a passer-by.

The fall was about 70 feet.

Supreme Court was in session, with Judge Wiswell on the bench. Benjamin Burton of Union was foreman of the grand jury, and George Alexander of North Haven and Roscoe B. Robbins of Union were foremen of the traverse juries. C. O. Barrows was court reporter.

Charles Webster's workshop on Pleasant street was burned.

C. N. Thomas resigned as motorman on the Street Railway, to take a position with the West End.

It took eight men and a derrick to hoist one of John Cleveland's horses from a well at The Meadows into which it had fallen.

Jesse M. Blackington deposited 50,000 salmon fry in Alford's Lake.

Private Ralph H. Blackington scored nine straight bullseyes at 500 yards on the Tillson Light Infantry range, the best record at 500 yards ever made by a Rockland National Guardsman.

The Grand Army fair was one of the season's biggest events. Winners of several contests were: Piano, Miss Grace M. Ulmer; lady's bicycle, Miss Edith Killman; boy's bicycle, Fred L. Smith.

Alan L. Bird was playing center on the University of Maine football team. Gay Thomas resigned as assistant lineman and inspector for the New England Telephone Co. and was succeeded by Fessenden W. Miller of Union.

Rockland had 188 telephones—and all busy.

Samuel Cummings was again awarded the contract to carry the Clark Island mail.

George A. Nash became janitor at the Central Club, George E. McLaughlin having resigned.

Osgood A. Gilbert was putting up the Theodore Roosen store on South Main street.

An unoccupied house on Gay street, owned by Mr. Carter of South Hope, and last occupied by Levi Saunders, was destroyed by fire.

Capt. M. W. Woodman sold St. Patrick, 223 1/2, to E. H. Berry and Joe Howe, 223 1/2, to Walter West of Belfast. St. Patrick had trotted an unofficial mile of 2:17 1/4.

John W. Ross of Sea street and James McDevitt of Brick street were drowned in Rockland harbor by the capsizing of a sailboat.

Seth Low, president of Columbia University, and candidate for mayor of Greater New York, was in the city, homeward bound from Northeast Harbor, where he had spent the summer.

C. I. Burrows of Union moved into the house on Summer street, which he bought from A. B. Crockett.

The kite flying record among the experts at Cooper's Beach was broken by Harry B. and Charles A. Farwell, who flew a box kite at the end of 6500 feet of string. The best previous record was 5300 feet, held by H. E. Krechbiel of Brooklyn.

Henry C. Day was elected president of the Epworth League.

The First Baptist Choral Association chose these officers: President, Mrs. F. B. Whitcomb; vice president, Miss Jennie F. Ingram; secretary, Miss Almee Marsh; treasurer, Miss Helen Knowlton; executive committee, F. B. Whitcomb, W. C. Emery and Miss Lottie Skinner; director, H. M. Lord; assistant director, Miss Sarah M. Hall.

The old cement kiln at the South-east, owned by the Cobb Lane Co., and used as a storehouse, was burned.

The Maine Polo League was getting under way with H. G. Bird and W. C. French as holders of the Rockland franchise.

Frank H. Ingraham entered Littlefield's office to study law.

G. O. Andrews who had been in the clothing business here for several years, moved to Camden.

F. E. Burpee opened his new drug store on Elm street.

Mrs. Mary M. Sherer's barn on North Main and Maverick streets was burned.

Julia, widow of the late Willard S. Blackington, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. B. Hastings on Middle street.

BIRD'S ROOFS

Here's a Beautiful Roof

SO good looking it adds a touch of prosperity to any residence. Colors—natural slate green, red, or black.

So long wearing it will pleasantly remind you of its economy for years to come.

Bird's American Twin Shingles are really two shingles in one, easily picked up and laid with one hand, and self-spacing. 10" in length. They will not catch fire from falling sparks. Made of the same materials as Paroid Roofing.

We know from experience that Bird's American Twin Shingles make good—that's why we sell them.

BILL SIMMONS, F. D.
Which, Being Translated,
Means Furniture Doctor—
He's a Good Un.

William F. Simmons of Rockland is gaining a considerable reputation throughout Maine as a doctor of old-fashioned furniture.

But he goes the doctor one better. Whereas medical science recognizes its limitations, conceding at the outset that there are some things it cannot remedy—a broken back, for instance—Mr. Simmons is the kind of person whose motto is "Never say die."

No matter how badly smashed up may be a piece of antique furniture that is turned over to him to repair, he has never yet been known to refuse the task. Even a broken back does not daunt him. He will puzzle over the problem, he will tinker and polish, and match boards with a never-ending patience, and eventually he is quite sure to achieve the desired result.

Because of this patience and perseverance and because he has repaired many a piece of ancient furniture believed to be damaged beyond repair, Mr. Simmons has won reputation that extends far beyond Rockland and indeed to many cities outside the State from which summer tourists come to Maine.

A visit to Mr. Simmons's workshop is like a visit to a hitherto unexplored and mysteriously alluring territory. In one corner is likely to be a desk that antedates the Boston teaparty. In another will be a butterfly table of a variety that flourished in England during the reign of William and Mary. Elsewhere will be a century-old table whose fractured legs are being made over into new, but so cleverly that the semblance of the old wood is retained. In fact it would tax anyone but an expert in antique furniture to detect where Mr. Simmons has mended any of the many pieces which have been seen out of his workshop.

Not long ago, he was commissioned to repair a grandfather's clock of ancient lineage, which was suffering from a splintered back and a partially shattered case. It was fashioned from mahogany, and in mending it Mr. Simmons cut down a piece of mahogany to the size required to fit the shattered places, treated them with muriatic acid to give them an appearance of age, and then carefully inserted them, coating them with shellac, then going over the whole clock, repaired places and all with varnish, after which it was rubbed down. When the task was completed, the keenest eye could not detect the jointure.

Antique furniture of great value may be found in this shop any time one cares to visit. Summer people are among Mr. Simmons's best customers, and not long ago a summer visitor to Maine who has a palatial home on one of the islands of Penobscot Bay had him go over her entire collection which constitutes the major part of the furnishings of her summer home.

For seven weeks Mr. Simmons lived at her cottage while he was engaged in the task of renovating her household goods, and after he returned to Rockland she shipped an entire boatload to him to be repaired.

It is the same with other summer residents. Mr. Simmons's careful and painstaking work has so impressed them that they not only have him work on the furniture at their summer places but also send articles on from their city homes to be repaired.

It is an expensive task. The sum that he commands for his services is by no means small, but for that matter his efficiency in his chosen line is rarely equalled, so that the people who can afford to do so are ready and willing to pay, and William F. Simmons, furniture doctor, never lacks for customers.

THE OLD MASSASOIT
Damariscotta Handtub Has Fine Record of Wins—Folks Proud Of It.

Perhaps one of the oldest hand tubs in the State is the old Massasoit of Damariscotta, which carried off first honors in its class at the recent muster at Gardiner. It is a Hunneman tub and was brought to "Scotia" in the '40s. In spite of its age there is no better hand tub, it is agreed by many, to be found in the country today or one with a longer record of wins. The old tub has made trips to Massachusetts and has never failed to credit to its home town.

In 1876 the present company was organized and there are three charter members surviving—George P. Lewis, who has been steward of the organization since its formation 46 years ago; Warren Brown and Leander Linscott. There are many silver trumpets, cups and pitchers, also a large bronze statue, all prizes won by the old Massasoit. No account has been kept of the cash prizes, but a history of the Massasoit's triumphs would be very interesting to read. There is also a handsome marble clock, with brass trimmings, which was won by the hand tub years ago.

Where Extra Service is Demanded Firestone Cords Predominate

WHEREVER the exacting and tests of tires are most severe—there you will find Firestone Cords in universal use.

The hard jobs seek Firestone. And so well has Firestone responded under difficult conditions—so consistently has mileage mounted to totals impossible to obtain from ordinary tires that today Most Miles per Dollar is the buying slogan of thinking motorists everywhere.

The blending and tempering of rubber, gum-dipped cord construction, air-bag cure—all these mileage methods have been developed by men whose life work is the production of constantly increasing tire values for the public.

Users in this vicinity verify Firestone reputation, and report almost daily some new Firestone record of extra distance travelled.

Don't be satisfied to buy tires—buy values—the longest mileage at the lowest price consistent with such reliable performance.

Make Most Miles per Dollar your principle of tire economy—choose your next tire on that basis.

TENANT'S HARBOR DAYS
Showing Some Ancient History Set Down in a Well-Known Diary.

I have dad's diaries from 1876 to Nov. 921, and some day I am going to read them. I have been reading the one of 876 and noticed that the entries, which were written with pencil, stopped Feb. 13 and did not begin again until March 20, this being the entry on the latter date:

"This book has been lost since the 14th of February. I lost it on the railway and it was picked up on William Hart's shore by George Snow." The writing is as distinct as the day it was done. When you consider that the diary was frozen in an ice-cake exposed to the elements for five weeks it is certainly wonderful to find it so well preserved.

I do not remember whether at the age of 11 I had visions of becoming a mariner, but on Jan. 4, appears this entry: "Ally and I have had a talk on navigation." That was always dad's manner of spelling my name.

"Jan. 13.—Installed the officers of Eureka Lodge this evening." This was my birthday but dad makes no mention of it, neither did he invite me to attend installation. Twenty-five years after he was an honored guest when he was installed W. M. of Joseph Warren Lodge of Boston, dad being the W. M. of Eureka Lodge.

"Jan. 14.—Ally has gone to the leap year ball this evening. Miss Mitchell called for him. 10 p. m. Ally has not come home yet." Didn't I tell you that was a shy bashful kid. "Jan. 22, 1013 lbs. butter, have had none since Jan. 15. April 25, but a pair of seabirds today, the best I ever saw." April 26, Ally and I are getting along very well—she does the cooking and I look on.

May 5, Bro. Stephen S. Bickmore died this morning at 929. Mr. Bickmore was a shipbuilder and one of the leading men of the village.

"Sunday, May 7, Masonic funeral, Bro. S. S. Bickmore, 60 members Eureka Lodge present." In those far off days being a Master Mason meant more than it does today. I find all through the diary where the members of Eureka Lodge watched with the sick, night after night, took charge of the funeral and then passed around the hat for contributions for the family.

"May 23.—The Hart's Neck boys and the Harbor boys had a match game of ball this afternoon; score, Harbor boys 50, Hart's Neck 33. There was a first-class row this evening between Mrs. — and Mr. —, a most shameful affair." Occasionally a family feud would break out and then the youngsters had a great time on the side lines!

"May 31.—Ally went to Rockland with Willie Henderson this morning." I'll bet a cent Rockland sat up and took notice when we two sports blew in. Probably we had 25 cents between us and kept things moving while we were there. Will was my boyhood buddy and before I was five years old had shown his friendship for me by giving me a wallop in the face with an ax that nearly destroyed my beauty.

THE WORLD SERIES

Best In Seven This Year—The First Game In New York Oct. 4.

The 1922 world's series baseball championship will open Oct. 4 in New York City. Last year's prices will prevail.

The arrangements for the opening game in New York was made on the assumption that the New York Giants will win the National League pennant. Both New York clubs were represented at the meeting and the National League club won the toss to decide where the first game would be played. Should St. Louis win the American League championship, the first game at St. Louis would be played on Oct. 7.

The arrangement calls for the opening game Wednesday, Oct. 4, to be known as National League day when the Giants would be "at home" on the Polo Grounds in New York, and the next day, Oct. 5—providing the New York Americans win the American League pennant—would be American League day when the Yankees would be "at home" on the same grounds.

If the St. Louis Americans win the American League race, they would play in New York, Oct. 4 and 5, and Friday, Oct. 6 would be travel day. Three games would be played at St. Louis, Oct. 7, 8 and 9, following the three games which would be played in St. Louis Oct. 7, 8 and 9, should St. Louis win the American League pennant, Tuesday, Oct. 10, would be travel day and the sixth game of the series would be played in New York, Oct. 11.

In case of a postponed game, the arrangements provided that such game should be played on the grounds where postponed, prior to games scheduled at another city.

In case the series should run to a 3 to 2 tie, the contending clubs would play the late one before the final and deciding game. This would be played in New York, Oct. 12, if St. Louis were one of the contenders.

ROCKLAND NEXT YEAR

Universalists Will Hold State Convention Here—The Auburn Session.

The annual Maine Universalist Convention, which was held this week in Auburn, came to a close Wednesday night with a banquet and mass meeting under the auspices of the Universalist Comrades, the men's organization of the church. Two hundred attended the banquet and listened to addresses by Dr. James F. Abbot of Portland, Rev. Harry Townsend of Westbrook, Mrs. Ethel M. Allen of Columbus, Ohio. At the mass meeting Charles I. Whitcomb of Portland presided and Dr. John Smith Lewis, general superintendent of the Universalist church, gave the address.

Large attendance marked the entire convention. All of the homes of Universalist families in Auburn and Lewiston were filled with guests and 25 homes in a Methodist parish in Auburn were kindly opened to accommodate the visitors.

The new officers elected included Harry F. Vose of Waterville as president and William D. Talbot of Rockland as a member of the executive committee. Upon receiving an invitation from the Rockland parish, extended by Rev. J. M. Ratcliff, the convention voted to hold its 1923 session in the city of Rockland.

The following persons represented the Rockland church: Mrs. Margaret Benner, Mrs. Ada Mills, Mrs. H. N. McDougall, Mrs. Sarah Billings, Miss Mabel Lamb, Mrs. Ethel Campbell, Miss Myrtle Herrick, Mrs. Susie Davis, Mrs. Cora Kittredge, Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Ratcliff, W. D. Talbot, Robert Stevenson, Rev. and Mrs. E. W. Webber, and Mrs. Angelica Glover.

WARREN

Mr. and Mrs. Crowther are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Butler.

Edward J. Dwyer, Roy Norwood have returned from their motor trip to Quebec.

The guarantors of the Swathmore Chautauque will be glad to know that the quota went over the top.

Dr. Palmer and Miss Annie Gerrish of Fitchburg, Mass. were callers of Mrs. George H. Smith Tuesday.

Mrs. Helen Dunbar is visiting her son Parker Merriam at Owl's Head.

Fred Butler has purchased a Ford car of John Davis.

Phinney Mank of Waldoboro was in town Friday.

Mrs. Robert Walker and Mrs. William Robinson combined business with pleasure at the Union Fair where they dispensed sandwiches and everything to satisfy the inner man.

A truck heavily loaded with furniture from Boston to Rockland passed through the village Friday.

The Congregational church will reopen next Sunday after a month's vacation, during which time repairs have been made. Morning service is at 10:30 with sermon by Rev. E. W. Webber.

The funeral of the late Erastus Rollins was held from his home Wednesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. E. W. Webber. The Masonic body was in attendance and performed the ritual service of the order. A large number of friends and members of the Congregational church of which he was a member were present to do honor to his memory.

NOTICE—A meeting of the Pewholders of the Congregational church at Warren, Maine will be held in the church parlors adjoining said church, on Saturday, the seventh day of October, at two o'clock p. m., for the following purpose:

To see what action, if any, they will take in leasing their house of worship and chapel.

To see what sum of money they will raise for that purpose, how it shall be raised, or take any action in relation to the same.

To transact any other business which may legally come before.

OLD STEAMBOAT DAYS

Capt. A. C. Tibbetts Applies His Excellent Memory To This Subject.

Eureka, Calif., Sept. 16.

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

May 7, 1868, I left Rockland on Steamer Katahdin, returning to Rockland last year, 1921. Some time prior to former date, Steamer City of Richmond made her initial trip on the Portland-Penobscot River run. She docked at end of Atlantic Wharf and was visited for inspection by many Rockland people, I being among the number. How much earlier than May 7, 1868, this was I cannot now say. John P. Wise was the Richmond's agent at the time.

G. W. Muirbridge, sailmaker of Rockland, has a picture of the Steamer Menomenee Sanford, which was running on the Boston-Bangor route when I was a youngster. Steamer Rockland was on the Eastern Islands run, and these two comprised at the time the regular steam fleet of the pond. At various times thereafter several other steamers came there, viz.: Daniel Webster, Regulator, Lady of Lang and City of Richmond. All of the foregoing were sidewheelers. The first propeller screw steamship 7 to visit Rockland in my time was a boat named William Tibbetts. She made a landing at Commercial Wharf, old steamboat pier and at the time was not running regularly. Think she later made an attempt at regularity.

A. C. Tibbetts.

Services will be resumed at St. John's Episcopal church Sunday. Holy Communion at 7:45 on the arrival of the first case from Rockland and evening prayer with music and sermon at 7 o'clock. Church school at 6.

Mail receptacles serve the carriers time and hasten deliveries. It is therefore the postoffice departments desire to have suitable receptacles at every residence. The absence of a mail receptacle not only tends to inconvenience the patron but unquestionably results in inferior service through delaying the carrier on his route.

It is not the department's desire that any shall be deprived by this requirement but rather it is earnestly hoped that all will see the reasonableness of it and its advantages to themselves as well as to the carrier. But if it finally becomes necessary mail delivery will be discontinued where no door slots (preferably) or mail receptacles are provided.

Carrier delivery service will not be extended to any new dwelling not equipped with suitable receptacle.

The Christmas Sewing Club will meet Wednesday evening with Mrs. Harold Stetson.

The first meeting for rural teachers was held at Warren High School building Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Miss Florence Hale of the State Department of Education, is to speak to the teachers at the October meeting. Miss Hale is one of the leading educators not only in Maine but outside of our State and we are fortunate indeed to have her come to us. The October meeting will be a combined meeting with the teachers in Union. The date will be announced later.

Both Camden and Rockland were successful on the gridiron last Saturday. The Camden-Lawrence game today will be watched with interest, for it will show Camden High School in a hard contest. Rockland has no game. These teams meet in Rockland next Saturday.

Warren High School is soon to observe a visiting day, date to be announced.

Last Friday after school a meeting of the Warren Athletic Association was held and found everybody working toward the 100 per cent membership mark.

A surprise party was given at the Warren Congregational church parish on Monday evening in honor of Miss Tiffels' birthday. A program consisting of vocal solos by Mr. Steward and Roland Berry, a duet by Beatrice Wilson and Ruth Libby, a violin solo by Roland Berry, and humorous sayings by members of the school, was enjoyed. Refreshments were served and the birthday cake, made by Mrs. Jameson, was the prettiest ever. The ring was won by Leland Peabody, the coin by Austin Gammon, the button by Clement Moody, and the thimble by Mary Connell. Games were enjoyed during the evening and every one reported a wonderful time.

Last Friday after school a meeting of the Warren Athletic Association was held and found everybody working toward the 100 per cent membership mark.

A surprise party was given at the Warren Congregational church parish on Monday evening in honor of Miss Tiffels' birthday. A program consisting of vocal solos by Mr. Steward and Roland Berry, a duet by Beatrice Wilson and Ruth Libby, a violin solo by Roland Berry, and humorous sayings by members of the school, was enjoyed. Refreshments were served and the birthday cake, made by Mrs. Jameson, was the prettiest ever. The ring was won by Leland Peabody, the coin by Austin Gammon, the button by Clement Moody, and the thimble by Mary Connell. Games were enjoyed during the evening and every one reported a wonderful time.

The first meeting for rural teachers was held at Warren High School building Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Miss Florence Hale of the State Department of Education, is to speak to the teachers at the October meeting. Miss Hale is one of the leading educators not only in Maine but outside of our State and we are fortunate indeed to have her come to us. The October meeting will be a combined meeting with the teachers in Union. The date will be announced later.

Both Camden and Rockland were successful on the gridiron last Saturday. The Camden-Lawrence game today will be watched with interest, for it will show Camden High School in a hard contest. Rockland has no game. These teams meet in Rockland next Saturday.

Warren High School is soon to observe a visiting day, date to be announced.

DEER ISLE

The family of Samuel Cold is quarantined with diphtheria and there are a number of cases of whooping cough among the school children.

The Misses Rena and Doris Haskell have returned to Boston and Portland for their winter's work.

Deer Isle was fortunate in having the Searchmore Chautauque here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The program began Monday afternoon with a lecture by the superintendent, E. F. Bowen, on "Our Constitution." This was followed by a concert given by the North Atlantic Artists, a highly entertaining trio of musicians. In the evening another concert was given, and then came a lecture by Julius Caesar Nayha on Oriental life and customs. For fluency of language and wit, grace and eloquence and gorgeousness of elaborate costumes and costly jewelry, this performance would be difficult to beat. On Tuesday afternoon the superintendent presented a lecture on "A Republic" by the Cartwright Brothers Quartet, instrumental and vocal musicians, whose program was greatly enjoyed. In the evening another performance by the quartet was given, followed by an address on "Social Redemption" by the Hon. Charles H. Poole, formerly a member of the legislature of New Zealand and who is now touring the country lecturing on the progress which his country has made and the good examples it has set for other nations to follow. A Junior Chautauque Stunt Party on Wednesday afternoon was given by some of the children of the community under the direction of one of the Chautauque workers. A one-act play, "A Study in Black and White," was much enjoyed, as were the impersonations of a Swedish farmer and a man with a cold in his head. In the evening a three-act drama, "Cappi Riels," was presented to a crowded house. At a meeting for the purpose, thirty-six townspeople became guardians for the Chautauque next year, so it looks as though the island shall be privileged to again listen to an other program of music and information.

THE PRATTLER

CXVII.

It was a contrast of circumstances that made us first appreciate the beauty of North Waldoboro Pond almost ten years ago. And there started then a very real sentimental attachment that has persisted through the last decade in spite of several intervening and jarring influences that might tend to dissipate these woodland affections. It had been a rather harrowing day for canoeists with a superfluity of rocks, rapids, mosquitoes and generally disturbing influences. Where the Medomak River led to, we did not have the slightest idea. One thing was sure—we could not possibly have picked a worse stream to try to negotiate with a canoe. And so at the end of a very imperfect day, North Waldoboro Pond in all its tranquil beauty suddenly came upon us.

We paddled the length of the pond just before dusk and soon stopped before a pine-strewn promontory that could not have been better adapted for sleeping bags and a camp. Scores of great pine trees, with a mixture for variety's sake of white birches, had trooped down from higher land to the water's edge and stopped—waiting for us to ground the canoe and make camp. The whole point was thickly carpeted with fragrant pine needles and we were fascinated by the nature and beauty of the place. The pondily crowded coves made up on both sides of the point and the only ripples to mar their placid surfaces were when we glided over them to find a good landing place. Soon firelight against white birches was reflected on both sides and we were settled for the night.

The sun had long set; the stars were twinkling brightly; wisps of white mist came reaching out like ghostly white fingers from the nearby meadow lands over the water's surface. The elusive notes of a whip-poor-will floated in quivering charm across the pond; a fish splashed occasionally; and a weird batrachian chorus arose from some nearby stagnant pool. Outlines across the cove became dim, formless and vague—night in all its woodland charm had descended upon our camping place. A little later the moon, emerging from behind a black hillside, put to shame the glimmering firelight and fringed the pines with silver. Among what more peaceful conditions could two weary canoeists unroll their sleeping bags! From the wooded region that shimmered there, there grew up a new world of wondrous harmonies in ebony and silver. Vast, inky shadows stretched out across the water from the woods and threw mysterious bridges across the cove and lost themselves on the other side. Moonlight and mist wandered in subtle union across our point in North Waldoboro Pond.

Such were some of the details attendant upon our introduction to that delightful pine point and during the intervening ten years we have cherished them fondly in our memory. It was not until the next day that we met the Benners and learned how kindly some country hearts can be and how delicious fresh green corn can taste. There was nothing in Mr. Benner's garden but what we were better welcome to and there was nothing he could have offered us that would have been more appreciated. We stayed there for three days and since then have on various occasions preliminary to corn roasts and picnics on the same charming spot.

In fact we went there last Sunday, but our method of approach was not by canoe. Leaving the car in the field, we walked across the meadows to the wooded path along the pine point that has become so familiar. Frosts had bronzed the corn leaves, dried the bean stalks and created a far different aspect from the brilliant green in the wind-tossed corn fields of a month before; but nothing had changed on the point since first coming upon it ten years before.

After dinner we lay for a while on our back down by the shore, where a few cat-o-nine-tails swayed in the September breeze and a little chipmunk chattered querulously from an overhanging bough. The same mood as during that glory of moonbeams and gleaming waters came upon us—a mood of peacefulness of mind which this locality always inspires—a mood in which our own miserable little interests, ambitions, hopes and fears fade away and become lost for all the world like the wood smoke curling through the branches over our head. Was it not remarkable, we decided in our reveries, that this spot could still have such a tranquillizing influence over us upon returning from places at quite a goodly distance from North Waldoboro? We had visualized it once in France. We had seen the ever-changing color effects when the wind hums and ripples through the pine spires; we had seen the firelight on white birches reflected in the cove below; we had seen again the fantastic and vast shadows reaching out into the mysteries of moonlight and mist. We had seen all these once in France and it was a stiff jolt when reverie and reality was spanned by an unintentional kick in the stomach from our buddy who was lying at our side in a pup-tent in Belleau Woods. Something had happened to the little kitchen that night and we had gone to bed on that bleak hillside after eating with relish and avidity a raw turnip that had been left by the Germans. Quite a bit had come to pass in this old world before progressing from the woods on the shore of North Waldoboro Pond to desolate and shell-toned Belleau Woods. The wind played majestic organ music among the branches over one, and shells whined over the stricken expanse of the other. As we lay there by the shore, we said with the deepest of conviction to that scolding little chipmunk overhead that we would take the woods of North Waldoboro to those of the Argonne every time.

The foliage along the road back was just beginning to be changed into its gorgeous autumnal tints. Fringed gentians and goldenrod flanked the roadsides and in the light just before dusk, the meadows and fields appeared green as poison. There was one spot near an old camping ground, which had been exploited before in this column, that would have driven a landscape painter frantic from ecstasy. A cooling, leave-strewn creek wound itself through a grove of trees that had been prematurely touched by nature's paint brush. Against those arsenic green fields and distant blue mountains, the grasses stood out in a perfect blaze of old rose and maroon. And the background of the picture was White Oak Pond—a wondrous cobalt slab of blue in the fading light.

ROCKLAND BOY WAS IN IT

Historic Night Boat Attack On Fort Sumter Which Resulted In a Lamentable Fiasco.

(Written for The Courier-Gazette by Capt. Edward A. Butler)

As we, become older, we live more and more in the past. The other day I was thinking of an incident in which I had a part nearly sixty years ago. It may interest some of The Courier-Gazette's readers to learn of it.

We hear so often of the doings of the Army in the Civil War that we sometimes wonder if we had any United States Navy during that important and unpleasant four years in the history of our country. If there be any who think the Army "did it all," such are respectfully referred to Admiral Porter's excellent History of the U. S. Navy in the Civil War, 1861-65, where they will find that the Navy bore a very important part and did its full duty on every occasion in putting down the rebellion, the most noted in the history of any nation since the world began.

I am tempted to give an account—being one of its few survivors—of an attempt to capture Fort Sumter by a fleet of boats on the night of Sept. 8, 1863, which, as might have been expected, proved a miserable failure. Porter in his account calls it "a grave mistake," but it proved to be rather serious to those who had a part in it; at least it was for a time very exciting to those who got out alive or were not taken prisoners.

Both the Navy and the shore batteries of the Army had been pounding away at Sumter night and day for weeks and months, until it had the appearance of being a heap of ruins and debris. Reports came to us that it was defended by "a corporal's guard" which was later reinforced by a Carolina regiment to 450 men. Admiral Dahlgren had heard that the Army was getting ready to make the assault and fearing they would do so and get ahead of the Navy and reap the glory of the capture of Fort Sumter, he determined to go ahead and do what he thought would be an easy task. Some of us on many later occasions fervently wished that it had been the Army instead of the Navy that so miserably failed!

If it hadn't been such a "hurry-up," job, and had a proper reconnaissance been made of the internal and external condition as simple military prudence would dictate; or had Gen. Gillmore, commanding the land forces, been consulted and asked to co-operate with the Navy, the result would have been different. It would at least have been found that Sumter instead of being a heap of ruins upon which a body of sailors could easily climb, had left a straight, upright wall some 20 feet in height, that could only be overcome with scaling ladders, which would not have been possible, when defended by courageous men.

A fleet of boats with about 400 men were hastily gathered about the flagship and volunteers called for. Admiral Porter says: "You can always get volunteers from among sailors for any enterprise, however desperate."

I was a young officer attached to the U. S. Sloop of War "Housatonic," then serving on the coast year on the South Atlantic Blockading Squadron stationed off Charleston, S. C., and had gazed long at Fort Sumter, and seen it being slowly smashed to pieces. I was among the volunteers and was put in charge of the Housatonic's third cutter. I knew but little about the arrangements—and didn't care, being of the age when one has more courage than good judgment. We were simply going in to capture Fort Sumter. I wrote no farewell letters home. It was a little adventure, and I was coming back—although at a night boat-attack. More than a hundred men were sacrificed to Admiral Dahlgren's attempt to do what was not possible by human endeavor. Almost 60 years have come and gone since the writer had part in this scrape, out of which at the time he never expected to emerge alive.

Stevens wrote an article that was printed in the Boston Sunday Globe of October 29, 1911, entitled, "The Boat Attack on Sumter." He speaks as if he was in it, but many of us have believed always that he wasn't under fire at all, for after being towed in as far as possible by a tug and cast off and we were quietly pulling in for the fort, we met a boat coming out, and asking what boat it was were told that it was Commander Stevens, and that he was ill. I do not believe that any of his contemporaries thought him to be a coward. He had the Admiral's gig, and if any of his boat's crew be now living they can testify if this was the boat we met retreating as we were pulling in for the fort.

It was a clear starlight night. As we drew in, there came a loud hail of "Boat ahoy!" and getting no answer, up went a rocket from the vigilant sentry, and "the ball opened." We received a very warm reception.

Porter gives my name as among prisoners, which fortunately for me, was not true. My shipmates who were captured spent 14 months in southern prisons. Lieut. Commander Williams, perhaps the ranking officer among the captured, survived the ordeal, and after the war, while in command of the U. S. S. Onida of the Asiatic squadron, was drowned by the capsizing of his boat while crossing the bar of one of the rivers of China. The fate of the others I never knew, but of course they are all long since dead. The only living member of my boat's crew, so far as I know, was a Portland boy, aged 17, Frank J. Gould, a brother of Nathan Gould, so long identified with the Maine Historical Society, and who died some years ago. The matter was soon hushed up and forgotten. Admiral Dahlgren was probably ashamed of his "grave mistake," as Porter calls it. Stevens died a year or two ago as a retired Rear Admiral. In his account he says the expedition was against his judgment; he asked the Admiral to relieve him of the command and reluctantly consented. Porter says the entire fleet combined with the Army could not have taken Sumter that night, defended as it was. The rebels held to the place for various reasons and did not give it up until Sherman's March to the Sea—when the capture of Charleston made it no longer tenable. The Confederates were obliged to withdraw all of its defenders. The greater part of those who escaped alive from the fiasco of Sept. 8 never felt any great pride in having been engaged in the failure to capture Fort Sumter by a night boat-attack. More than a hundred men were sacrificed to Admiral Dahlgren's attempt to do what was not possible by human endeavor. Almost 60 years have come and gone since the writer had part in this scrape, out of which at the time he never expected to emerge alive.

LIBRARIANS MET

Knox County Association Visits Miss Bartlett and Talks Shop.

The Knox County Librarian Association met Thursday with the Rockland Librarian, Miss Martha Bartlett, in the Rockland Public Library. This was the first regular meeting of the association for the 1922-23 season, and some general plans were mapped out for the year.

This organization, though not widely known, has come to be of great importance to the people of Knox county. Library work has admittedly been at a low ebb in this section, but the last year or two has seen a rapid growth in library use and service. The old attitude is expressed by the librarian who was asked how his library was getting on. "Fine," says he. "All the books are in but one and I'm going for that now." The present day attitude is to get as many books as possible into the hands of as many people as possible.

One of the important functions of the association is the reviewing of books in order to get the right ones into the libraries. This is an important part of the work, for it is hard for each librarian to read every book she puts on her shelves. The full discussion of encyclopedias, histories and sets of this kind is part of the work. New methods and improved systems of library operation come in for their share of attention.

The new identification card system, just established at the local institution, was very thoroughly discussed. By this system one person may take one or several books at a time just as he wishes. The only thing necessary is the personal identification and responsibility. But no person can use another's card under this system. It saves much confusion and allows a far greater freedom in the use of books than did the old card system. This new plan is now used successfully in many parts of the country. Another new idea is the use of the "book card" as a lending library. Books are kept as a lending library for the convenience of the public. No book is in the lending library, at a day rate price, which is not on the free shelves.

This winter the association plans to have several speakers and general meetings through the winter for the purpose of arousing more public interest in library affairs. An idea of the change in our library can be gained from the fact that today the library is open 72 hours per week, every day except Sunday from 9 o'clock in the morning until 9 in the evening and there is a strong possibility that it may be open Sundays from 2 until 5. Compare this with the old schedule of only 15 hours for the entire week. That the public appreciate this increase in service is much apparent by the trebled use of the building every hour in the day. School children especially enjoy the new scheme of things. The public library is a public place and all of the public should have its advantages, conveniences and services. Every late book and most magazines and newspapers are in its stock in trade.

VINALHAVEN

Mrs. Alice Strickland who has been spending the summer at Bangley Lake arrived Tuesday.

Mrs. Blanche Craig of Philadelphia and Washington, D. C., left Wednesday for Boston after several weeks' stay with her niece, Mrs. Arthur Arrey.

Mrs. Julia Hamilton returned Monday from Niagara, N. Y.

Mrs. Flora Ashcraft who has been spending the summer with her brother, T. W. Hall at Bangley Lake, returned Tuesday.

Mrs. L. Arrey entertained the party of friends Tuesday evening in honor of Mr. Arrey's birthday. A delicious supper was served to the following guests: Mrs. Clara Smith, Mrs. J. E. Hopkins, Mrs. Fred Greenleaf and Mrs. Frank Kossuth. A most enjoyable evening was spent in talking over home news. Refreshments were served and the guests returned at a late hour.

The Vernal Club held a meeting Monday evening at the home of Mrs. E. E. Swears. The time was pleasantly spent with music and singing until a late hour.

The dinner was served at 6 o'clock, in which a large birthday cake appeared. In the evening, in honor of Mrs. Swears and Mrs. Joe Arrey, each of whom had a birthday on this occasion, a supper was played until 11 o'clock.

The funeral services of T. Benion Lane, whose death occurred early Friday morning, were held Sunday afternoon at the home of his sister, Mrs. Clara E. Pendleton. Rev. Charles H. B. Seliger, pastor of the Unitarian church, officiated. Deceased was born in Vinalhaven, the son of William S. and Mercy (Benion) Lane, and was 63 years of age.

During his long illness he was tenderly and faithfully cared for by his only son, Leo Lane, who made many sacrifices to be with his father and gave words of comfort and cheer through his hours of suffering. Besides his son, he is survived by four sisters: Mrs. L. T. Graham of Waban, Mass., Mrs. William Gove of Portland, Mrs. Clara E. Carleton and Mrs. Clara Pendleton of Boston.

Many floral offerings were sent, marking the last and warmest of friends and relatives. The remains were interred in the family lot at Ocean View cemetery. The bearers were: E. E. Smith, G. P. Lyons, Albert Robbins and F. L. Roberts.

Mrs. Margarette Young returned Thursday from Boston.

Mrs. Anna Roberts, Mrs. J. P. Moore and Mrs. Ada Green were guests Tuesday of Walden.

Mrs. Andrew Johnson and children were guests of Mrs. Lucy Hildens at Calderwood's Neck.

Mrs. Lora Hardison and daughter Louise returned Saturday from a few days visit in Rockland.

Mrs. E. G. Carver is spending a few weeks in Boston and vicinity.

Frederick Jones, Mrs. Frank Jones and Miss Lena Greenleaf returned Thursday to Northport.

Swathmore Chautauque has been with us this week, and the general opinion is that the program was both educational and interesting. The first day's entertainment by the North Atlantic Artists, was most enjoyable, and Julius Caesar Nayphe presented a unique lecture and Oriental pantomime. The young ladies of our town who assisted in the pageant in Oriental costume were: Louise Hardison, Leah Haleson, Phyllis Shields, Lida Greenleaf, Muriel Chiles and Bertha Miller. The second day brought us Overwright Brothers' quartet, playing twelve different instruments with professional skill and artistic ability. The quartet was full of "pep" and certainly made a hit with Vinalhaven. The lecture in the evening by Hon. Charles H. Poole was full of information and educational worth.

Captain Eric Smith of the Salvation Army, Rockland, will be the preacher at the Baptist church Sunday morning.

The RUDY Pipeless Furnace

uses a 24 or 28 inch or larger pipe which passes more than twice as much warm air upstairs as compared with the average pipeless furnace which uses a 16 or 18 inch pipe.

Investigate the Rudy before you buy. Better do it now—remember those cold, raw North Winds last winter. The Rudy brings to your home the kind of climate you like best—the uniform humidified and healthful climate. The Rudy sees to it that every room in your home is warm, cosy and comfortable, no matter if the mercury sinks out of sight.

The Rudy is built entirely of Rudy Charcoal Iron—a metal known to successfully resist continuous, excessive firing and terrific heat.
